

METHOD OF FABRICATING MONOCRYSTALLINE CRYSTALS

ABSTRACT

5

A method of producing a crystal formed from a first monocrystalline material. The preferred method includes assembling a first substrate with at least one film or at least one layer formed from a second monocrystalline material, and growing the first material on the film or thin layer. The invention also provides a corresponding crystal.

10